

“Relentless”

By
Jenny Krist

Poetry
Lakeside Assembly of God
Shelby Twp., MI
20 lines

“Relentless”

Wailing waves like spoiled children lash against the shore
Tempest tantrum unrelenting, always craving more.
Smashing, crashing sailboats, surfboards; tossed toys upon the sea
Never ceasing, passions beating,
Weeps the waves, “Relentless Be!”

Roaring winds pound day and night tall mountains; solid, strong
Etching slowly, deftly creeping countless eons long.
Chipping cliff sides, carving canyons, not wavering from its course
Shaping, wearing, molding, tearing,
Blasts the wind, “Relentless Force!”

Tiny seed triumphant soldier assaults his soily grave
Buried deep yet fortitude drives forth to upward save.
Charging through its tiny tunnel, undaunted by its size
Pushing prodding, nudging, shoving,
Shouts the seed, “Relentless, Am I!”

Then creation hears a whisper, still small voice from He
Love Incarnate, Shepherd, Savior; Stiller of the seas.
Hushing winds with just one word, Holy Sacrifice upon the tree
Healing, Saving, Forgiving, Life-Changing,
Cries my heart, “Relentless After Thee!”