

“The Valley of Transformation”

Kappa Tau Poetry

Ryler Evans

Victory Assembly of God, Neosho, MO

28 Lines

There was a valley God told me to walk through.
I replied, "What you have bidden I will do."
As I descended in the heat and grime,
God began to ask me after some time,

"My child, who are the people you see?"
I answered, "Nobody I'd want to be.
There is something in common with them all;
Everyone has a blemish or a flaw."

God said, "You are part of this group too."
Then I wept, for I knew it was true.
He cried, "Now behold you this hour
Those who accept my saving power!"

He pointed toward a mountain where stood a cross
That had blood flowing from it and soon across
The shallow valley where we all stood.
What I observed next was very good.

I could not believe what I began to see!
Everyone that the Blood of Jesus set free
Were instantly transformed from vile sinners
To people of God who'd become soul winners.

I noticed a difference in me as well –
This experience I could not buy or sell –
I became a thoroughly changed man
Which was all part of God's perfect plan.

After this, I realized the power of God

Had no limits since it could change such a fraud

As I and the others who lived in wretched sin

By seeing our potential, not our faults, within.